We did.

We're always exploring new ways to apply innovative technologies. By applying NASA technology we were able to leverage an innovative polymer originally designed to survive challenges in space. Its stability in extreme environments, corrosion-protective qualities and ability to work in very small places allowed us to reach the complex left side of the heart, which led to one giant leap in product design. We're always reaching further, going farther. The story continues at medtronic.com/innovation.

Innovating for life.

Who knew that space exploration would lead us closer to the human heart?

We did.

We're always exploring new ways to apply innovative technologies. By combining with technology we were able to develop a new generation of minimally-invasive, surgically-implanted cardiac resynchronization therapy (CRT) devices. By addressing the unique challenges we faced, the ability to perform minimally-invasive, minimally-invasive surgery was made a reality. And, by using the most powerful technology to make the CRT devices even smaller, we were able to get them to the heart where they were always, making better, better, better. The only solution for minimally-invasive CRT.

Innovating for life.
